Area students learn the true meaning of courage at Discovery North Bay Museum.

November 10th was a PD Day for area students, and Discovery North Bay Museum hosted a Remembrance themed activity camp. Students created a wreath to be presented at Memorial Park and listened to a presentation from Captain Doug Newman.

The children taking part in the PD Day Camp at Discovery North Bay Museum learned about the meaning of Remembrance Day, and the need to celebrate the courage of our Canadian Veterans. Day camps are offered at the Museum every PD day.

Participants created a wreath with messages of thanks to be presented at Memorial Park

Brownies and Scouts Take Part in the Junior Curator's Club

This week, local Brownie groups and Scouts groups took part in Junior Curator's Club special sessions at the Museum. The young visitors learned what it is like to be a curator. We wore our special white curator gloves and inspected artefacts from the education collection. We examined artefacts to determine what materials they were made of, what purpose they served and who might have used them.

Do you have a group that might enjoy the Junior Curator Club program? Call 476-2323 to book the program and take advantage of special pricing for not-for profit groups.

Fibre Artists Creating and Teaching

Traditional Textile Art at the Museum

What was once an old fashioned craft of necessity is witnessing a boom in popularity. The art of rug hooking now renewed as 'fibre art' is showing up at artisan fairs, fashion boutiques and art galleries.

The North Bay "Rags to Riches" was busy showing off their talents at Discovery North Bay Museum on Wednesday November 12th from 10am to 1pm. They be created and displayed textile art in the traditional form.

The local Rags to Riches group's most recent effort included a call to textile artists across Canada to participate in the North Bay Heritage Carousel exhibit, which is now on display in the upper gallery at Discovery North Bay Museum.
