When the dust settles....

Let me start by saying, it is not as bad as it looks! This picture was taken during the demolition of the former telegraph building this spring. I was impressed by how the museum was framed in the middle of what appears to be destruction and chaos. Having been a witness to the demolition, it was far from chaotic. It could have been better described as a methodical crumbling!

Now that the construction teams are drawing close to a finish on Oak Street, I have to admit that I am very excited about how things are shaping up. To see actual trees on Oak Street is just beautiful! The sidewalks look amazing. Congratulations to the crews that have been hard at work in the summer heat, and now the early fall snow!

We would be remiss if we didn't mention that the construction slowed things down for us a little bit at the Museum. The number of people we consider to be 'walk in' traffic was down considerably this summer. However we know that with the approaching holiday season and the ever popular Downtown Christmas Walk things are looking up!

Santa Claus Parade November 16th – FREE DAY at the Museum

Ho, ho, ho, we love the Santa Claus Parade! On Sunday, November 16th Discovery North Bay Museum will be hosting a FREE DAY for children from noon to 4:30. Children 12 and under, accompanied by an adult, are invited to visit the museum displays for free.

Enjoy hot chocolate or apple cider while you wait for Santa's arrival on the parade route.

This picture was taken of our Discovery North Bay Museum float in 2006. Cliff Cowcill, grandkids, and Terry Shore (aka Sparky the fire prevention dog) cruised through town in the Museum's fire engine. The Bickle fire engine used to belong to the North Bay Fire Department's fleet.

Haunted Walks Wrap Up for the Season

Hallowe'en night marks the end of our first, very successful season of Haunted Walks at the Museum. The walks, which began on August 22nd, tour the downtown highlight some of North Bay's spookiest and most shocking stories. Folks in North Bay love to be spooked. As it turns out, we have sold out 23 tours in a row!

Many thanks to our friends from downtown businesses who have shared their frightful stories with us including but not limited to: The Royal Theatre Office Suites, Gulliver's, Pearls, CIBC Bank, and New Orleans Pizza.

Special thanks to our ghostly guides: Kyle Marsh, Kyra Knapp, Jennifer Buell, Matthew Krist and our mascot Creepy Connie. Watch for Haunted Walks to return in June of next year.

Happy Hallowe'en from the Haunted Walk Crew!
